

Los Alamos Makers is a new community lab and makerspace to open June 13. Courtesy

Los Alamos Makers to open June 13

BY MANDY MARKSTEINER

Special to the Monitor

Los Alamos Makers is a new community lab and makerspace where members can build, sew, solder, rivet, tinker and teach. The space and the equipment is available to use at an affordable rate. It's like having your own workshop.

On June 13 the new community lab will owner of Los Alamos Makers and Biodidact, which is located in the same space. There will also be workshops that cover designing, engineering and building skills.

Anyone interested in leading a workshop or teaching a specific skill can have access to the